Mexican Veterans.

It was a grand old time the Mexican Veterans had last night at their ball. They had made great preparations for the same, they had talked about it and written about it for a long time in the past, they had summoned their comrades from every part of the State, and when the time came the very scene of success and enjoyment was obtained. The two new rooms of the Arlington House were never so gay, so brilliant before; it will be many a day before they are so brilliant and gay again. The walls and ceilings were literally one mass of flags and bunting, and the arrangement of these was most admirable in kind. There were yellow flags and blue flags, there were red flags and white flags. There were flags with a man's head inscribed, flags with a great star in the center, flags with a cross and a flower in the corner. Away aloft were the stars and stripes, and grouped around were the colors of the other nations of the earth. At least one hundred and fifty in all, waved to and fro in the breeze, and there was a grandeur which can only be appreciated by the guests who were there. And what shall we say of the Veterans themselves? They were the heroes of the occasion, they were the ones to whom the honor was due. Hither and thither they walked, schottisched and danced, and as they went whirling along respect was acknowledged by all in attendance. And yet it was not all joy. Ever and anon old comrades would separate themselves from the crowd, and as the music went on, the scenes of other days were presented again, and once more the battles and tumults and storms of the war were recalled, and the scenes of their last thirty years were as fresh again in the days of old. Here was a kaleidoscope of the present and the past, the two joined hands in celebrating the day, and the result was such as will be ever vivid in the minds of the actors. Yet, it was a happy time for the Mexican Veterans, their ball was a magnificent success, their company was rich and select, their music and dancing was of the very best, their spirits were as merry and happy as the tones of a marriage bell.

We find in the Enterprise a local which tells how a Caranite tried to collect coin of the Chinese in Virginia, for the purpose of saving their pig-tails and presenting a watch to Governor Bradley. The local is as follows: "Last Friday and Saturday there was much commotion in Chinatown. It was caused by the appearance there of a person named Howard, from Carson, who claimed to be a policeman for the Chinese quarters of that place, and who informed the Celestials of this city that the Legislature were about to pass a law to cut off their pig-tails, and that unless they raised him $800 to pay a lawyer and put a stop to it the bill would surely pass and become a law. They asked a little time in which to raise the money, and in this way the movement leaked out. Captain Ivy, who tells the story, then informed the Chinamen that it was only a trick to get money from them, which would be pocketed by the man Howard. While here he also tried to collect money to buy a gold watch to be presented by the Chinese to Governor Bradley.

The topping off of certain of the appropriations for the current expenses of the State government for the next two years has created considerable discussion over at the Capitol which is not at all complimentary to some of our penny-wise Legislators. It does seem as though a clean, square grab at Schooling's money vaults meets with more favor in the minds of certain individuals than the doing out of a small pittance for an absolute necessity.

The festivities attendant upon the celebration of Chinese New Years have ceased. During the continuance of the festival music has been heard from time to time in Chinatown, which eclipses any ever heard in Carson. It has been such music as that which St. Cecilia played in charming the angels, and the instruments used were a pair of cymbals, a cracked bell and an old beer barrel.

The Chief of the Pintos, Nachez, the renowned, is lying sick with pneumonia at his ranch on the Big Meadows. Whether his time has now come to join his fathers in their happy hunting grounds, whether the sun of his life is about to set on the earth we know not indeed, but Nachez has ever been faithful to the tribe over which he presides, and that he may be spared for their sake is the wish alike of both whites and Indians.

OBITUARY.

Another home-circle is broken and another house rendered desolate; another husband is made wifeless and his little ones made motherless, by the inexorable hand of Death. After many months of patient suffering and brave fortitude, Mrs. Jessie Wright, wife of our well known townsman, Mr. Sam. C. Wright, died yesterday afternoon. She had been hopelessly sick, with pulmonary consumption, for more than a year. She died calmly in her sleep. No better mother or wife ever lived; and no woman ever merited love or received a deeper or more constant love than that with which her full affection was reciprocated by her now heart-broken husband. She leaves behind her two little sons, beautiful boys, whose tender years will scarcely leave to their maturer age more than a dreamlike impression of her life and her passing away. Mrs. Wright was the oldest one of a large family of children born to Mr. and Mrs. John E. Rhodes of Woodland, California. One of her surviving sisters is the wife of Mr. Allan C. Bragg of Reno, formerly of Carson. We not only speak for ourselves but for the entire community when we express a profound sense of sympathy for Mr. Wright and the parents and brothers and sisters of his departed wife.

Yesterday being a holiday there was but little activity around the Capitol. Most of the Storey county representatives spent the day at home with their families and friends, while the members from the East lounged about and discussed the various legislative matters in detail. A few unfortunate ones were obliged to serve on committees, and while their colleagues were enjoying the sunshine and air without; while they were smoking their cigars and taking their ease in the hotels and saloons, these committeemen were shut in their rooms; and forenoon, afternoon and evening the same old words resounded in their ears, an "Act to amend an Act entitled an Act concerning vagrants, juries or some body else." It was Sunday in the middle of the week, and while all enjoyed the rest and ease of the day, yet the absence of excitement and bustle at the Capitol and on the principal streets of the town was noticeable indeed, and even the Legislators will not regret when the order of business is this morning resumed and the Senate and Assembly go once more into session.

JUDGE HILLIER of the United States District Court, has lately purchased the residence and block of land formerly occupied by Mr. Torreyson. This is one of the most desirable locations in Carson. There is a fine orchard here which produces several varieties of the very best fruits, besides an immense growth of raspberry, gooseberry, currant and other bushes.

Some of the most barefaced levies of blackmail are made by certain attaches of the Legislature upon their subordinates of which we have ever heard. A poor boy was allowed $30 a few days ago for cleaning up committee rooms and such like work. He had scarcely received the money out of the Treasury before he was made to stand and divide by the person who had given him the work.

The Austin Reveille of the 18th inst., contains a scurrilous and uncalculated attack upon the people of Carson. The cause of this show of spleen is that in a recent mention of the reception of the Bivert Club, we said that it was select and aristocratic. The editor of the Reveille used to reside in Carson and no one ever accused him of being an aristocrat.

When Nevada was reached in the electoral count objections were made to counting the vote of R. M. Daggett. The Democrats seem to be in the predicament of a drowning man grabbing at straws. Their beautiful temple of reform is crumbling. Its sandy foundation is fast disappearing, but straws will not save it from destruction.

Now is the time for fond mothers to stand aghast and not dare to say their souls are their own, when standing on the front doorsteps they call in piteous tones for help at seeing their mischievous broods mounted on stilts and turning summersaults in the neighboring mud puddles.

In the Assembly appropriation bill, the item for the support of the Nevada State Prison, including the salary of Warden, Deputy Warden, payment for services of Chaplain, and for transportation of convicts, and for purchase of material for carrying on industries at the prison is $150,000.

The general appropriation bill has been ordered engrossed in the House. The original bill as introduced by the Committee on Ways and Means has been discussed and amended, and it is probable that the bill as it now stands will be passed on its third reading.

The Chronicle has information that Mr. Moody is praying in the East for the reclamation of some young man in Nevada. If that young man is in Carson we are told that Mr. Moody will have to wrestle mightily in prayer.

The engineers and conductors of the Virginia and Truckee railroad will give a grand ball in Carson about the middle of next month. Extensive preparations will be made for the event.

Yesterday flags were flying from various public and private buildings in the town, and a general spirit of patriotism and respect to the memory of Washington prevailed.

Martha.
We heartily congratulate our lovers of the performances of the lyric stage upon the opportunity afforded them by Manager Titus to enjoy the first season of English opera (or any other kind of opera, for that matter), ever attempted in Carson. To be sure this is something like a pocket-flask of opera, this wee bit company, but it is none the less acceptable, on that account. Indeed the fact that an entire operatic performance can be compressed into the limits (as to numbers of performers) of this little troupe is not the least interesting or gratifying feature of this company's advent here. It illustrates that a half dozen well trained artists can give the interior public the condensed merit of operatic beauties; and judging from the patronage they are receiving here, it is not an unprofitable venture. Last night we were favored with Flotow's English opera of "Martha." It is but justice to the quartette to say that they showed, all round, a marked improvement in voice over the night before. All the gems of this delightful opera were given in a most satisfactory fashion. Miss Winston quite surprised the audience with the clearness of tone and richness of volume of her very cultivated mezzo soprano voice. Her rendition of the "Last Rose of Summer," merited its hearty encore. We have no stint of praise for young Farley's full, rich, voluminous baritone. We have not heard anything half so promising, this many a day. Mr. Bracy's tenor was very gracefully acted, and his capital tenor was at its best. Some of his middle tones are surprisingly full, sweet and strong; and Miss Clara Thompson's "Nancy" was altogether a delightful performance. The chorus at the finale was as good and rapturous as any four voices we know of could make it. We regret we cannot take the time and space to say more, and more fully particularize; but we should do justice neither to ourselves nor Mr. Boedecker were we to fail to mention the super-excellence of his playing and the cheerfulness with which he carries his long-sustained effort at the orchestral piano. Our friends will be greatly pleased to know that we are to have "Girofle-Girofla" to-night, and that Mr. Titus has underlined "The Grand Duchess" for a Matinee performance on Saturday afternoon.

Yesterday there was no stock report, the boards in San Francisco having adjourned for the holiday.

The travel by rail between Carson and Virginia is said to be unusually large at present.
